

Presented by the Friends of the Library

Distant Roots: Researching There
When You are Here & Chasing
Elusive Ancestors on the Internet
*with Karen Krugman

Stafford Community Room
Saturday, May 2 1:00 – 4:00

So all your ancestors aren't from Montcalm County or even Michigan? This presentation will teach you the methods and resources for filling out your family tree when its roots are far flung. It will also offer hints and ideas for using the Internet to find information on those hard to track down relatives that always throw a monkey wrench into your family research.

Karen Krugman has been researching since 1990, and founded her professional genealogy research business, Lineages, Inc., in 1998.

She enjoys the challenge of Lineage Society research. Since 2002, she has been speaking to genealogy groups in the metro Detroit area as well as other areas of Michigan & Ohio. Her talks are given with a humorous spin that is unique to her.

Karen has been president of the Ford Genealogy Club for 7 years, is Research Chair for the Detroit Society for Genealogical research, a member of the Oakland County Genealogy Society and a five-year volunteer at the Library of Michigan. She has written five books based on her family history research and is co-author of The Ford Family Cemetery book, which includes photos and other information on the cemetery where auto pioneer Henry Ford is buried. Karen currently resides in Bloomfield Hills, Michigan.

Karen Krugman